Parent Corner: Helping Our Kids Cope With Loss

During the past two months, we have experienced multiple community losses. While any death is a blow to our community and school, this has been a particularly difficult second semester with the death of three parents. Every member of our staff feels these losses and our thoughts remain with the families.

As a school, our focus has been on supporting the needs of those students most affected, but we feel it is important to give all students some guidance and direction at this time...and we encourage families to check in with their kids too, if appropriate. Helpful tips can include clarifying what death is, encouraging children to ask questions, and remembering that grieving is a process (and that every process looks different). If you could use some support, please give us a call and we will eagerly help support you and your family anyway that we can.
